

Making your investment journey better via digital

We all have a strong desire to prepare our future. Growing our wealth is almost a default ambition for everyone. Over the recent years, we have seen more Digital x Investment offerings in the market. Digital is not about putting a few videos on internet; it should give all of us a different and better experience compared to the past. In particular, the past two years have seen a sharp uptick in the number of people using online services for shopping, payments, healthcare, education and more ... From an investment perspective, we define investing digitally as offering advice in an investment environment beset by uncertainty and awash with social media opinions. These shifts are playing out amidst a booming digital economy, accelerated by the COVID crisis and propelled by ambitious national agendas.
